(FAAN) at:

American Latex Allergy Association

Airline and Airport Safety Issues

October 1, 2002

.

New FAA Security / Airline Safety

To meet new FAA airline security measures, an individual in need of carrying an EpiPen or other medical syringe, should carry a letter from their physician stating the medical need.

We suggest the letter contain the following:

- Your name and gender
- Your date of birth
- Your address
- Explanation of medical need

This letter should be signed by your physician and written on his/her letterhead.

A sample of this type of letter can be found on the website of the Food Allergy Network (FAAN) at:

www.foodallergy.org/[1]

For further information see the website of the FAA at:

www.faa.gov[2]

NOTE:Airport Security may be wearing Latex Gloves

We recommend contacting your Airport Security and /or Your Airline for further information.